

I am thoroughly pleased with the parameters of NJ's Do Not Call List and would not be enthusiastic to see it changed. I no longer receive unwanted or uninitiated calls from salespeople either at home or, particularly on my cell phone. I feel that the program in this state, while strict does not hinder the ability of any business to legitimately market its products and services to potential consumers. Please do not make the mistake of fixing something that the residents of the state do not consider to be broken.
